AVIS

THIS IS BOTSWANA

There is a kind of freedom that cannot be taught or spoken; it can only be experienced. In Botswana, that feeling begins long before you reach the Okavango Delta waters or the Kalahari sands. It starts the moment the landscape unfolds, vast, quiet and completely unhurried. The skies stretch wider, the silence settles deeper, and the air carries a rare calm that reminds you that not every corner of the world is in a race against time.

To feel Botswana is to step into a place where nature never surrendered its authority. In the Okavango Delta, waterways carve paths that change with every season, refusing predictability. In Chobe, elephants roam with an ancient assurance, unthreatened by the urgency of the modern world. And across the Makgadikgadi Pans, the horizon dissolves into a salt-white infinity that absorbs every worry you arrive with. Even the Kalahari, stern, sun-baked and honest, offers a solitude that feels cleansing rather than empty.

But that's not all. The capital, Gaborone's modern skyline rises with confidence, its cafés, art spaces, craft markets and entertainment spots offering a different rhythm of exploration. Farther south, towns like Lobatse and Kanye unfold with their own heritage stories, scenic hills, and cultural sites that show travellers a Botswana beyond the safari—one shaped by history, community, and the everyday pulse of urban Africa.

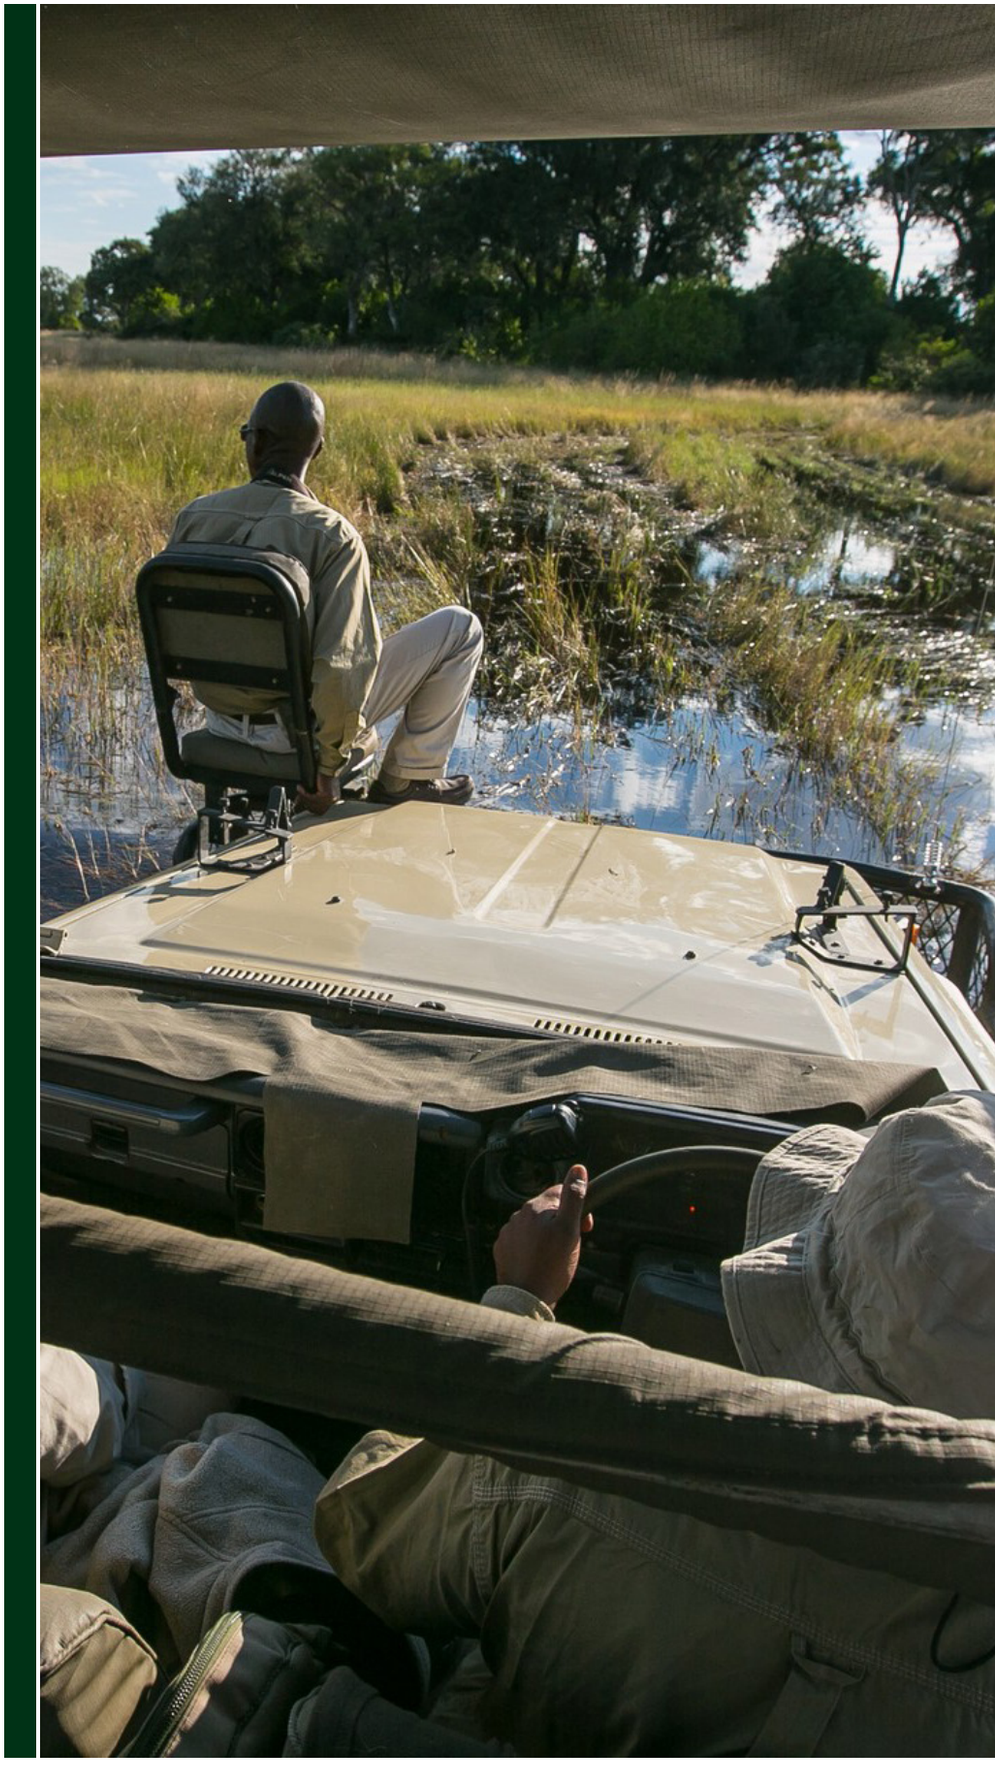

But Botswana's freedom is not only written in its geography. It is cultural and deeply human. It lingers in the warmth of a village greeting, the rhythm of traditional dance, and the wisdom of stories shared around a fire. It shows itself in a national commitment to peace, in the pride of wildlife protection, and in the belief that a country, like a person, can choose steadiness over chaos.

Though Botswana is the third least densely populated country in Africa, this quietness is part of its power. Its landscapes sweep from deserts to wetlands, linked by national parks, game reserves, and communities that live in harmony with nature. For safari lovers, this is one of the rare places where wildlife still moves on its own terms and its own time.

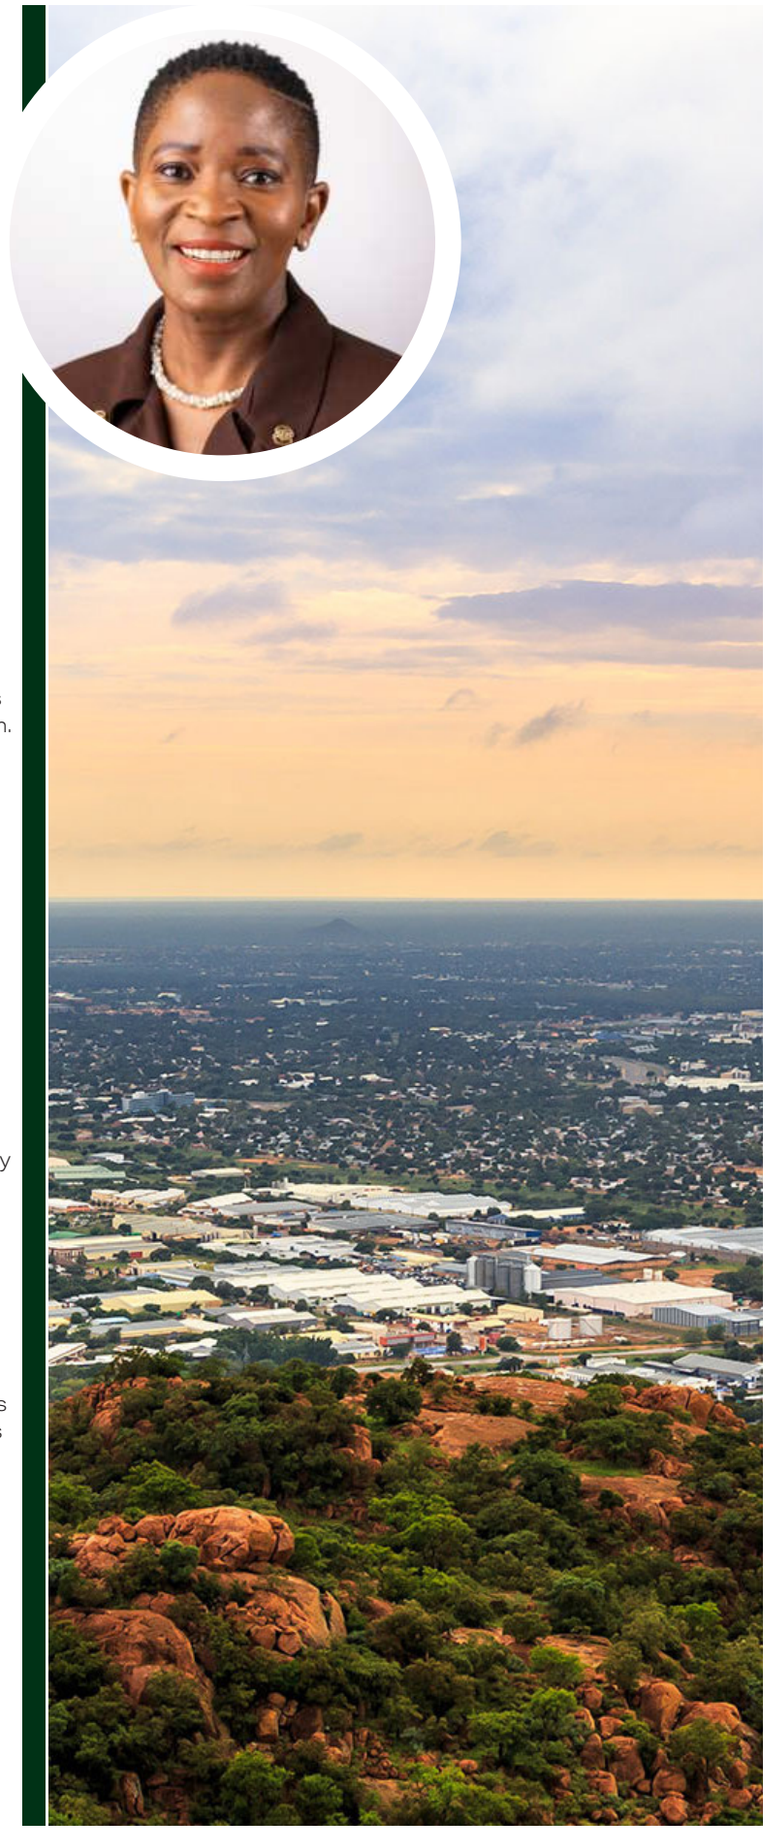

Yet Botswana is equally shaped by progress. Since independence in 1966, it has transformed from one of the world's poorest nations into a stable and forward-looking state. Its cities offer comfortable hotels, thriving business districts, modern cafés and cultural spaces. Visitors can transition effortlessly from the wild serenity of the Delta to the contemporary ease of Gaborone without losing the essence of the country.

More than 37 percent of Botswana's land is dedicated to conservation, safeguarding migratory routes and fragile ecosystems. A population of just 2.5 million means wildlife flourishes with minimal disturbance, allowing for intimate, meaningful encounters throughout the year.

Botswana's story is one of unity, pride and possibility. For travellers seeking a place where wilderness meets comfort, and where freedom is something you feel in your bones, Botswana offers an experience that stays with you long after you leave.
This is Botswana!

CELEBRATING THE SPIRIT OF BOTSWANA

Welcome to the latest edition of This is Botswana.
As Chief Executive Officer of the Hospitality and Tourism Association of Botswana (HATAB), it is a pleasure to present a publication that goes beyond the traditional travel guide.

This is Botswana is a curated expression of our national identity - a bridge connecting the world to the depth of the Kalahari and the lifeblood of the Okavango. Our purpose is clear: to showcase the authentic, untamed, and refined character of a country that has mastered the balance of high-value, low-impact tourism.

Experiencing Botswana is about more than luxury safaris. It is about recognising a global benchmark in conservation - where nature is not treated as a commodity, but as a heritage to be protected.

In this edition, we invite you to look beyond the landscapes and into the stories that define them, mindful that every visitor contributes to the pulse of our nation.

The impact of tourism is most visible within our communities. In the Chobe and Okavango regions, what was once a peripheral activity has become a central driver of social development. Here, tourism revenue translates into schools, clinics, and access to clean water.

Communities are no longer passive participants; they are active stakeholders. Through community-based natural resource management, the people of the Delta and the Chobe panhandle have become custodians of the land - demonstrating that when communities benefit from wildlife, they protect it.

Beyond these regions, tourism continues to shape the broader economy. It supports transport networks, creates opportunities for youth through hospitality training, and provides a platform for local artisans and cultural practitioners.

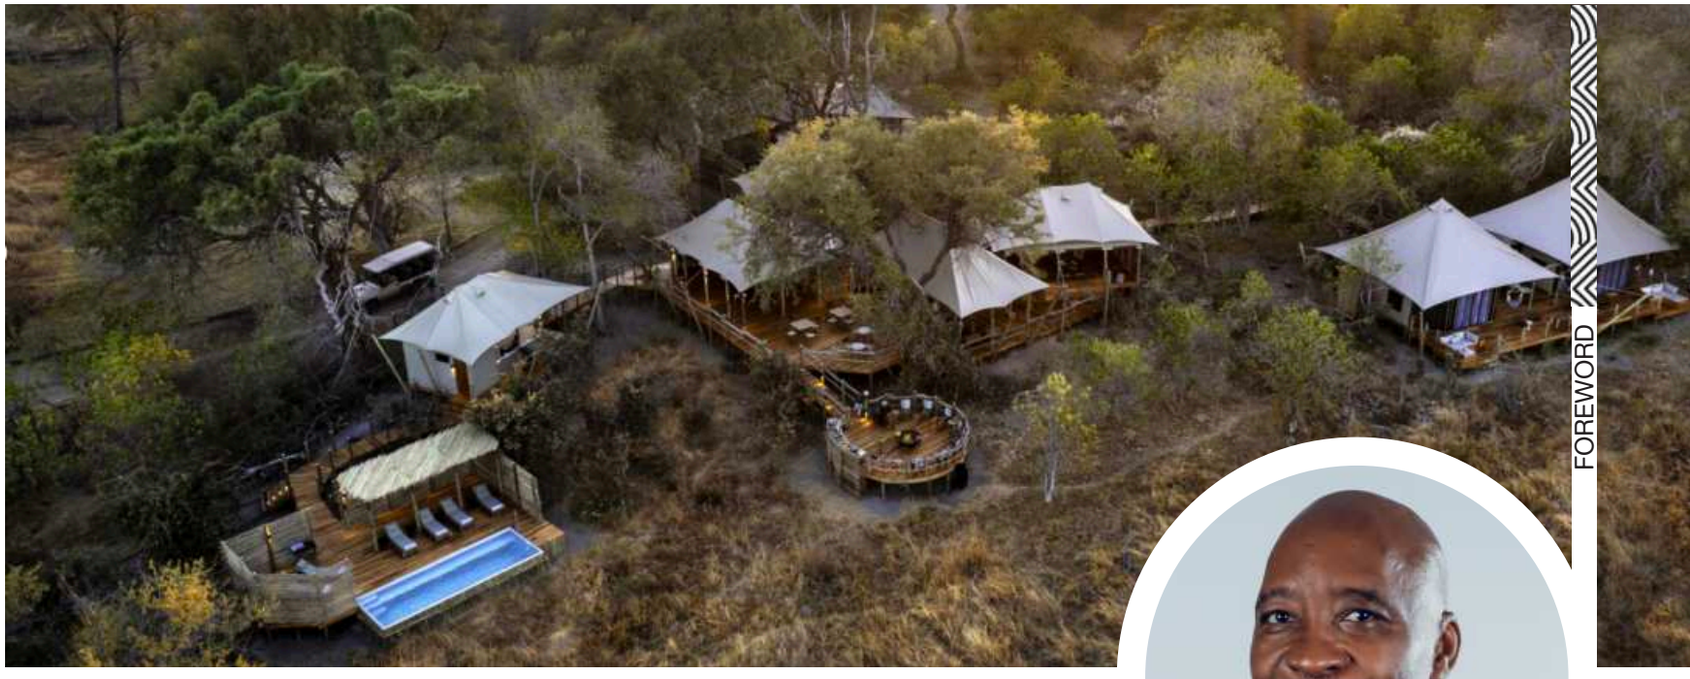

Botswana stands as an example of how tourism can contribute to economic diversification, helping to reduce reliance on diamonds while building a more resilient future.

At the same time, we are evolving.
Our vision for 2026 and beyond is centred on creating more value across the tourism chain - not by increasing volume, but by enhancing impact. This means strengthening local procurement so that what we serve, build, and showcase is distinctly Botswana.

We are also expanding into the Meetings, Incentives, Conferences and Exhibitions (MICE) sector, alongside cultural tourism, encouraging visitors to stay longer and experience more.

By integrating technology, sustainable energy solutions, and indigenous knowledge, we are shaping a tourism model where the value of our natural assets is directly reflected in the wellbeing of our people.

As you turn these pages, we invite you to engage, explore, and be inspired. Whether you are visiting for the first time or have long been connected to Botswana, your presence forms part of our story. Botswana is no longer just a place to visit - it is a place to participate, to invest, and to grow.

A GATEWAY TO THE SOUL OF AFRICA

HATAB Chairperson – Lawrence Lecha

On behalf of the Hospitality and Tourism Association of Botswana (HATAB), it is my honour to welcome you to the 2025/26 edition of our annual industry magazine, This is Botswana.

Botswana today stands not only as a premier travel destination, but as a global example of how a nation can balance economic ambition with environmental stewardship.

Tourism remains a central pillar of our economy. As the second-largest contributor to Gross Domestic Product (GDP), it provides livelihoods for thousands of Batswana through direct employment and the growth of supporting industries.

From professional guides navigating the intricate channels of the Okavango Delta to artisans in the Kalahari, this sector empowers communities while preserving our cultural heritage.

Yet tourism in Botswana goes beyond economic value. It is how we share our identity with the world rooted in Botho, respect, humility, and community.

To the global traveller: Botswana offers something increasingly rare: space, stillness, and authenticity. In a fast-paced and crowded world, ours remains one of the last great wildernesses.

Whether it is the steady flow of the Chobe River, the vast salt pans of Makgadikgadi, or the ancient rock art of the Tsodilo Hills, our landscapes offer a deep and personal connection to nature.

Our "low volume, high value" tourism model ensures intimate wildlife experiences while protecting fragile ecosystems. Visitors are not merely observers; they become part of a conservation story that includes hosting Africa's largest elephant population.

To the global investor, Botswana presents a landscape of stability and opportunity. Consistently ranked among Africa's most stable and transparent economies, Botswana offers a clear regulatory environment, ongoing infrastructure development, and a strong commitment to private sector growth.

We are actively working to diversify tourism beyond the traditional northern safari circuit, with growing opportunities in urban tourism, cultural heritage, and the Meetings, Incentives, Conferences, and Exhibitions (MICE) sector.

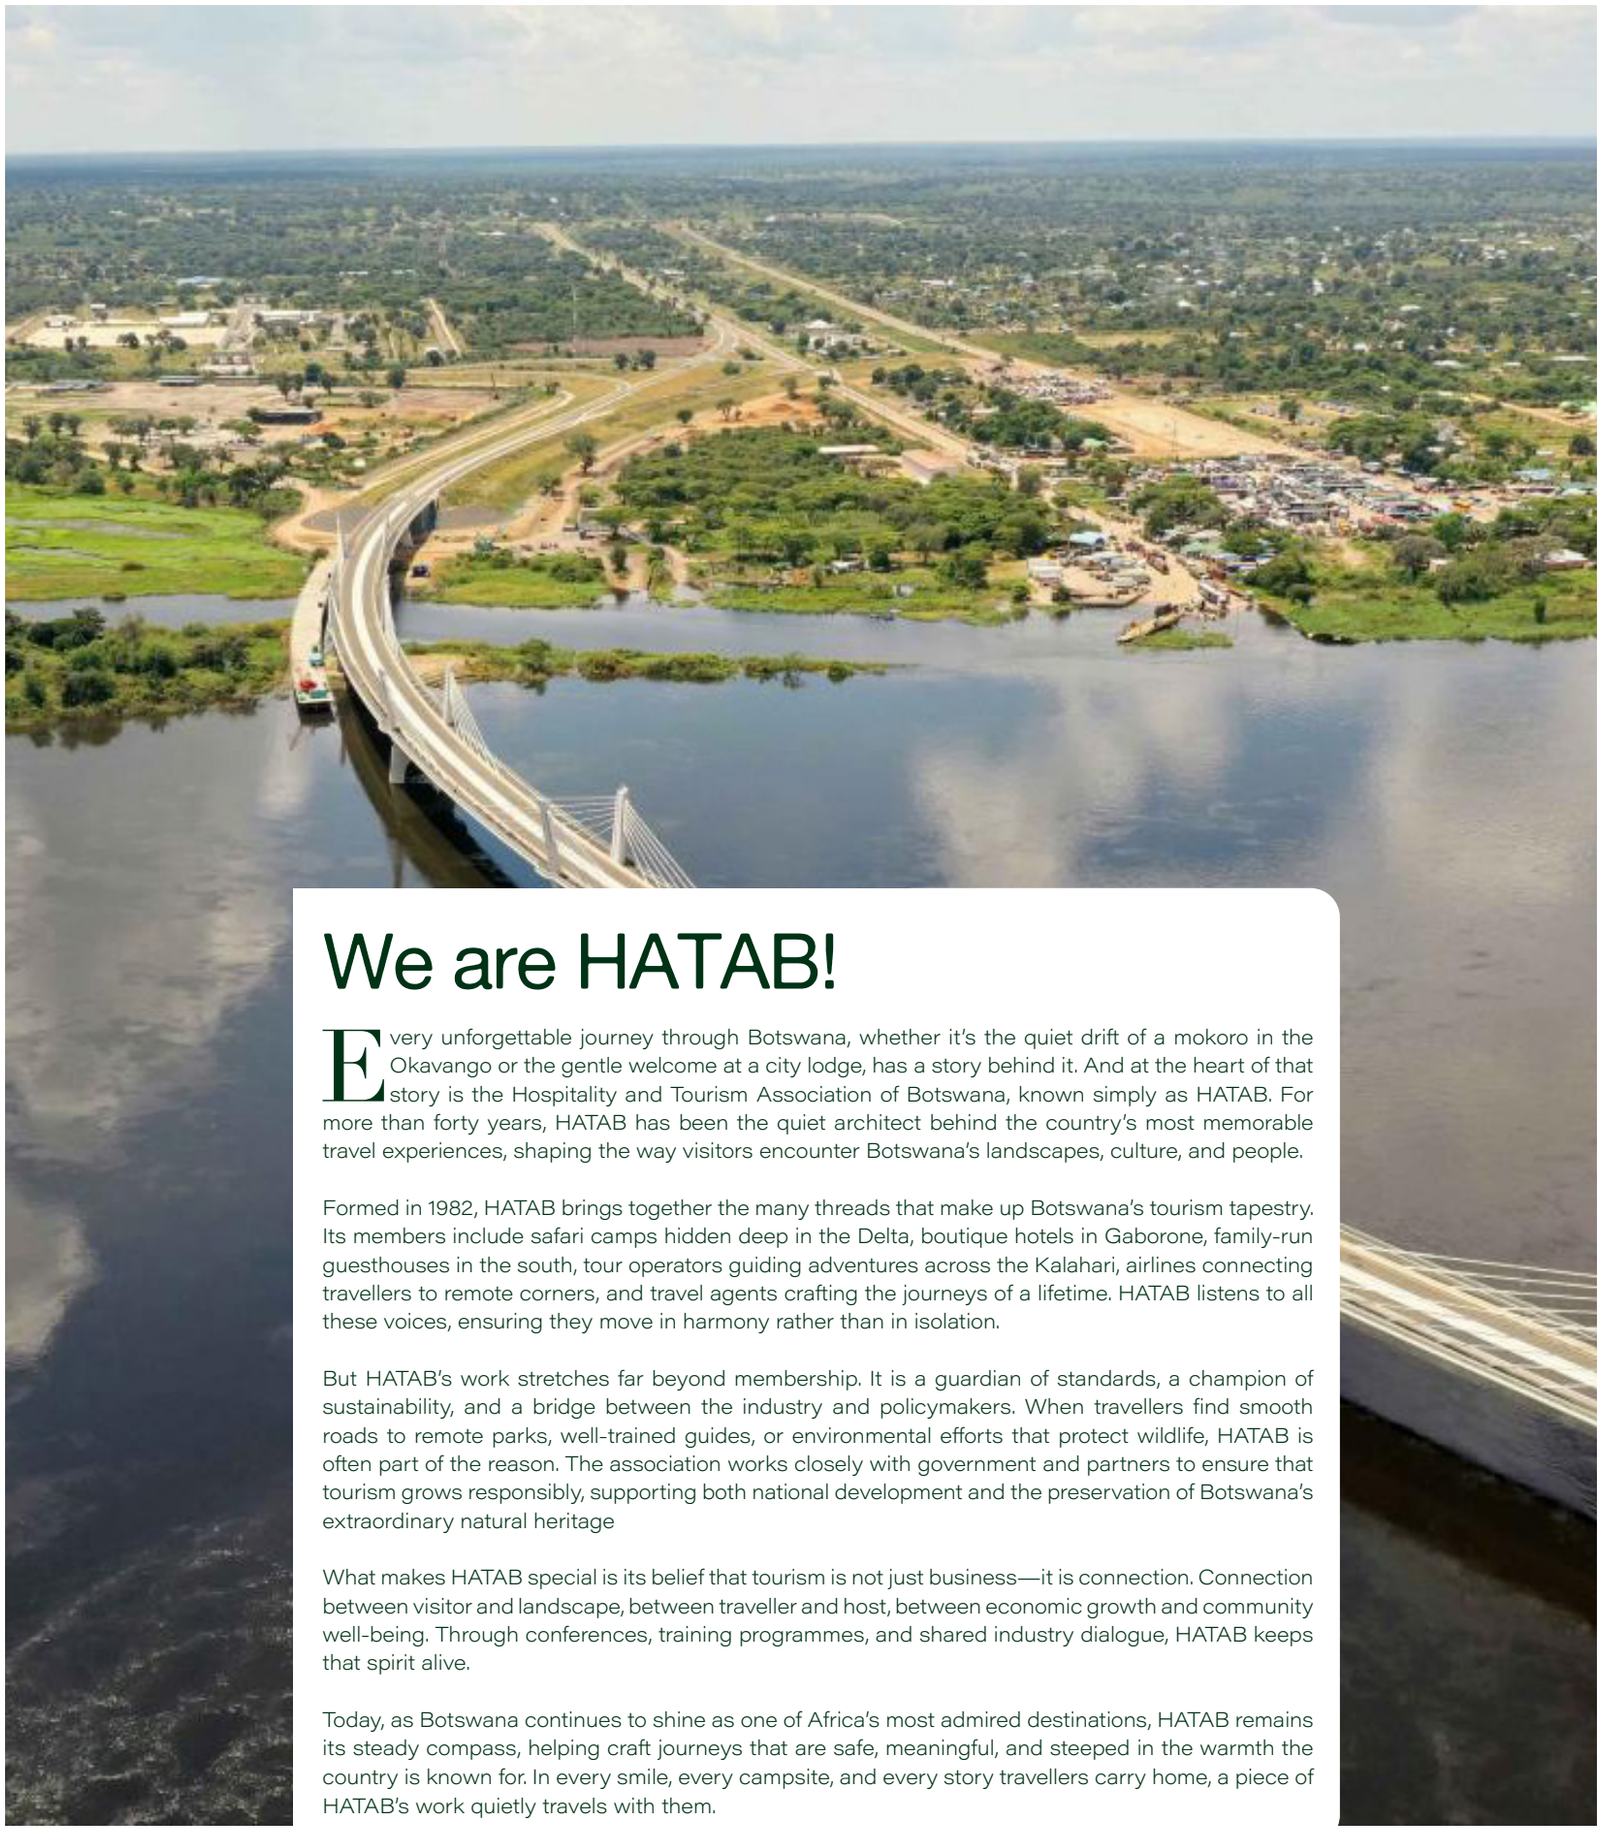

As we look toward 2026 and beyond, we invite investment in sustainable energy solutions, digital innovation to enhance visitor experiences, and carefully considered luxury developments aligned with our conservation values.

Investing in Botswana tourism is not simply a commercial decision—it is a commitment to a future where economic growth and environmental responsibility go hand in hand.

As Chairperson of HATAB, I remain proud of the resilience and vision of our members. Ours is an industry defined by innovation, adaptability, and a shared commitment to ensuring that tourism benefits reach all corners of our country.

We are setting a renewed agenda—one that invites the world to see Botswana differently. We are evolving from a diamond-led economy to one where our natural beauty and cultural richness take centre stage.

Whether you come to explore or to invest, Botswana welcomes you.
For the traveller.
For the investor.
For the people.
This is Botswana.

We are HATAB!

Every unforgettable journey through Botswana, whether it's the quiet drift of a mokoro in the Okavango or the gentle welcome at a city lodge, has a story behind it. And at the heart of that story is the Hospitality and Tourism Association of Botswana, known simply as HATAB. For more than forty years, HATAB has been the quiet architect behind the country's most memorable travel experiences, shaping the way visitors encounter Botswana's landscapes, culture, and people.

Formed in 1982, HATAB brings together the many threads that make up Botswana's tourism tapestry. Its members include safari camps hidden deep in the Delta, boutique hotels in Gaborone, family-run guesthouses in the south, tour operators guiding adventures across the Kalahari, airlines connecting travellers to remote corners, and travel agents crafting the journeys of a lifetime. HATAB listens to all these voices, ensuring they move in harmony rather than in isolation.

But HATAB's work stretches far beyond membership. It is a guardian of standards, a champion of sustainability, and a bridge between the industry and policymakers. When travellers find smooth roads to remote parks, well-trained guides, or environmental efforts that protect wildlife, HATAB is often part of the reason. The association works closely with government and partners to ensure that tourism grows responsibly, supporting both national development and the preservation of Botswana's extraordinary natural heritage

What makes HATAB special is its belief that tourism is not just business—it is connection. Connection between visitor and landscape, between traveller and host, between economic growth and community well-being. Through conferences, training programmes, and shared industry dialogue, HATAB keeps that spirit alive.

Today, as Botswana continues to shine as one of Africa's most admired destinations, HATAB remains its steady compass, helping craft journeys that are safe, meaningful, and steeped in the warmth the country is known for. In every smile, every campsite, and every story travellers carry home, a piece of HATAB's work quietly travels with them.

SUSTAINABLE TRAVEL: BOTSWANA'S NEXT FRONTIER

As global tourism shifts toward environmentally conscious experiences, Botswana is positioning itself as one of Africa's leaders in sustainable travel. The World Economic Forum's Travel & Tourism Development Index 2024 shows that many African countries still lag behind the global average when it comes to the infrastructure and enabling conditions needed for resilient tourism growth. Yet Botswana stands out for its deliberate move to build an industry rooted in conservation, low-impact travel and community benefit.

For a country long anchored in mining and resource extraction, sustainable tourism offers a powerful alternative. It provides income that is less volatile than commodity markets and creates jobs in rural and wildlife-adjacent communities where economic opportunities are often limited. Conservation-led tourism has become a cornerstone of Botswana's diversification agenda, supported by institutions such as UNDP and regional sustainability advocates who view the model as both environmentally sound and economically strategic.

Sustainable travel protects the very landscapes that define Botswana's appeal. The Okavango Delta, Chobe, and the Makgadikgadi remain among the world's most pristine ecosystems, home to elephant populations, predators, birdlife and diverse plant species. By anchoring tourism in conservation principles, Botswana ensures that its wilderness—central to its global tourism brand—remains intact for future generations. Travellers benefit too: they enjoy meaningful, ethical safari experiences that connect them to nature and culture, while communities receive direct economic dividends through employment, joint-venture partnerships and locally sourced services.

Wilderness Holdings, one of the region's pioneers in conservation tourism, illustrates the impact of this approach. Since 1983, the company has expanded its hospitality footprint while deepening its conservation efforts. Through partnerships with government and local communities, Wilderness has supported wildlife monitoring, anti-poaching initiatives and human–wildlife coexistence programmes. The model ensures that tourism revenue flows back into protecting ecosystems and supporting sustainable livelihoods.

Still, Botswana's sustainable tourism journey comes with its own challenges. As global travel rebounds, rising demand risks increasing visitor volumes—potentially straining fragile ecosystems if not carefully managed. The country's high-value, low-volume strategy will require firm regulation, strong oversight and unwavering commitment to environmental limits.

Opportunities lie in expanding tourism beyond classic safaris. Cultural and heritage-based tourism, community–run experiences and locally driven creative economies can tap new visitor markets. However, such diversification demands investment in infrastructure, skills and marketing to bring lesser-known regions into the tourism economy.

Sustainable travel also opens doors to climate-focused partnerships, conservation finance and international investment. For Botswana, the path forward is clear: protect the environment, uplift communities, and deliver experiences that honour both nature and culture.

#ILOVE BOTSWANA

Botswana is a premier safari destination offering some of the best wilderness and wildlife experiences amongst the African continent. It continues to stand out in terms of its tourism offerings, making it a must-visit destination globally.

Key tourism assets include pristine national parks and game management areas, which are home to a great diversity of wildlife and flora, Wilderness/ Wetlands experience, Culture and Heritage, Sports and Adventure and Business Tourism (Meetings Incentives, Conferencing and Events).

Experience in Botswana the stunning beauty of the world's largest intact inland Delta, the Okavango Delta; the unimaginable vastness of the world's second largest Game Reserve, the Central Kalahari Game Reserve; the isolation and other worldliness of the Makgadikgadi, uninhabited pans the size of Portugal; the dramatic rocky and rugged wilderness, Northern Tuli Game Reserve; and the astoundingly prolific wildlife of the Chobe National Park.

MAJOR TOURIST ATTRACTIONS

Makgadikgadi and Nxai Salt Pans

Situated in northern Botswana, the entire Makgadikgadi Pans network is the largest single pan and is famous for its unrreal landscape of the pans and their Stone Age archaeological treasures, many of which still lie buried just under the surface.

The Okavango Delta

Declared the 1000th UNESCO World Heritage Site declared in 2014, Okavango Delta is the largest inland delta, descending from the highlands of Angola to the Kalahari.

The Tsodilo Hills

Declared a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 2002. The mystical Tsodilo holds profound religious and spiritual significance to the local San whose ancestors have occupied the hills for millennia, and to the Hambukushu who have also periodically occupied the hills for the past two years.

Chobe National Park

The place for wildlife experiences, Chobe is home to the largest concentration of elephants on earth as well as large herds of zebra, Cape buffalo, giraffe and impala. Predators such as lion, the African wild dog and leopard are also frequently seen along the river.

Central Kalahari Game Reserve

Located in the heart of Botswana, the Central Kalahari Game Reserve (CKGR) is the largest and most remote game reserve in the whole of Southern Africa. The Reserve's northern grasslands attract large herds of springbok, gemsbok, wildebeest, hartebeest, eland and giraffe. Of course, their predators are never far away.

Kgalagadi Transfrontier Park

The Republics of Botswana and South Africa have joined forces in the promotion of Natural resources conservation by forming the world's first ever Transforntier Park "Kgalagadi Transfrontier Park" in Southern Africa. The formation of this park was merging the formerly known Gemsbok National Park, which is 28,400km2 and lies in the extreme southwest of Botswana, as well as the former Kalahari Gemsbok National Park which is 9,591 km2 in the South African side.

Goo- Moremi Gorge

Declared a protected National Monument, the alluring Goo-Moremi Gorge is a remarkable sight with spectacular gorges, five ascending pools and mystical waterfalls.

Northern Tuli Game Reserve

The Tuli Block is a narrow fringe of land at Botswana's eastern border wedged between Zimbabwe in the north and east and South Africa in the south. It consists mainly of game farms offering safari tourism. The eastern section has now been touristically developed as a private game reserve called 'Northern Tuli Game Reserve'

A FUTURE BUILT ON CONNECTION

Botswana's MICE landscape is evolving fast, blending business with nature, culture with innovation, and global engagement with local impact. As the country continues to diversify its economy, business tourism stands out as a powerful engine for growth.

In a world where meaningful connections matter more than ever, Botswana offers something rare: a place where ideas can be exchanged, deals can be sealed and memories can be made, all under the calm glow of the African sky.

Botswana has long been known for its wildlife, sweeping wilderness and luxury safari experiences. But beyond the Okavango sunsets and elephant herds, a new chapter is unfolding — one powered not by tourism alone, but by MICE: Meetings, Incentives, Conferences and Events.

As the nation seeks to diversify its economy, the business-events sector is emerging as one of Botswana's most promising growth frontiers, connecting global industries, driving investment and positioning the country as a sophisticated hub in Southern Africa.

HOW MICE TOURISM IS SHAPING THE COUNTRY'S NEXT GROWTH CHAPTER

Botswana has long been known for its wildlife, sweeping wilderness and luxury safari experiences. But beyond the Okavango sunsets and elephant herds, a new chapter is unfolding — one powered not by tourism alone, but by MICE: Meetings, Incentives, Conferences and Events.

As the nation seeks to diversify its economy, the business-events sector is emerging as one of Botswana's most promising growth frontiers, connecting global industries, driving investment and positioning the country as a sophisticated hub in Southern Africa.

WHY BOTSWANA IS BECOMING A MICE MAGNET

Strategically placed between South Africa, Namibia, Zambia and Zimbabwe, Botswana is leveraging its stability, connectivity and hospitality infrastructure to attract regional and international events.

Gaborone, the capital, has seen increased demand for conferences and corporate travel, buoyed by modern venues such as the Boipuso Hall and a growing portfolio of hotels equipped with high-capacity meeting rooms, hybrid-meeting technology and corporate accommodation.

What sets Botswana apart is the blend of modernity and nature. Delegates can transition from a high-level board meeting to a cultural dinner, a mokoro excursion or a guided nature walk — the kind of experiential add-ons that give MICE programmes a competitive edge. This balance of efficiency and immersion is making Botswana particularly attractive for incentive travel, leadership retreats and government-to-government summits.

BEYOND MEETINGS: INCENTIVES WITH A SAFARI TWIST

Incentive travel, rewarding high-performing teams with travel experiences — is one of the fastest-growing segments of the MICE market worldwide. Botswana is perfectly positioned for this niche.

Imagine a corporate team engaging in morning strategy sessions, followed by wildlife tracking with expert guides. Or executives celebrating milestones on a sundowner cruise along the Chobe River. These curated experiences are redefining what incentive travel looks like in Africa: exclusive, environmentally conscious and deeply authentic.

In the Okavango Delta, high-end lodges have begun tailoring corporate packages that mix luxury, conservation education and team-building. For companies seeking experiences that inspire creativity and deepen bonds, Botswana's wilderness becomes a boardroom without walls.

COMMUNITY AND CULTURE AT THE HEART OF MICE

Culture plays a decisive role in shaping the MICE experience. Setswana music, traditional dance groups, local storytellers and craft markets give delegates a glimpse into Botswana's identity.

Increasingly, event organisers are collaborating with local artisans — basket weavers, potters, woodcarvers — to create authentic conference gifts and décor. This strengthens creative industries and ensures that MICE spending flows directly to communities.

BOTSWANA'S LIVING CULTURAL LANDSCAPE

From the deft hands of basket weavers to the ancient marks left on Tsodilo stone, Matiseng footprint near Rasesa, Botswana's art is a living, breathing testament to its people's spirit. Whether crafted from palm, clay, wood or pigment, each piece reflects a nation rooted in tradition yet evolving with the world.

WOODCRAFT: CARVING THE SPIRIT OF THE KALAHARI

Botswana's woodcraft tradition thrives in rural communities that sit on the edge of wildlife-rich landscapes. The medium is often local hardwood, mukwa, ebony or mopane, prized for both texture and durability.

Artisans transform raw timber into graceful giraffes, elephants mid-stride, or bowls etched with traditional patterns. The craft is a lesson in patience: a single sculpture may take days or weeks, shaped by hand using methods passed down through lineages of carvers.

For tourists, these pieces are souvenirs; for locals, they are symbols of identity. Woodcraft connects communities to the land while reinforcing Botswana's conservation ethic,a reminder that creativity and nature have always been intertwined.

THE POETRY OF BASKETRY

In Botswana, baskets are more than functional objects, hey are cultural archives. Across villages like Etsha, Gumare, and Shakawe, women sit beneath shade trees, weaving mokola palm strands into intricate patterns handed down through generations. The famed Okavango basket, with its geometric swirls and symbolic motifs, has become one of the country's most recognised exports.

Each pattern carries meaning: zigzags for the flow of water, circular lines for unity, and arrow-like designs for abundance. Beyond their aesthetic value, baskets tell stories of survival, resilience and the central role of women in sustaining household economies. For many artisans in Ngamiland, a single basket can finance school fees or support an entire family, proof that art in Botswana is deeply intertwined with livelihood.

CLAY POTTERY: EARTH, FIRE AND MEMORY

Clay pottery in Botswana traces back centuries to the earliest Bantu-speaking communities. Using clay dug from riverbanks, potters mold vessels by hand, shaping them without wheels. Once dried under the sun, pots are fired in open-air kilns, leaving each piece with a unique smoky finish.

Traditionally, pots were used for storing water, cooking sorghum or brewing beer. Today, they stand as both functional wares and museum-worthy art forms. In villages such as Thamaga, artisans continue to refine techniques that preserve Setswana identity while adapting designs for modern buyers.

THE NATIONAL MUSEUM: CUSTODIAN OF BOTSWANA'S CREATIVE MEMORY

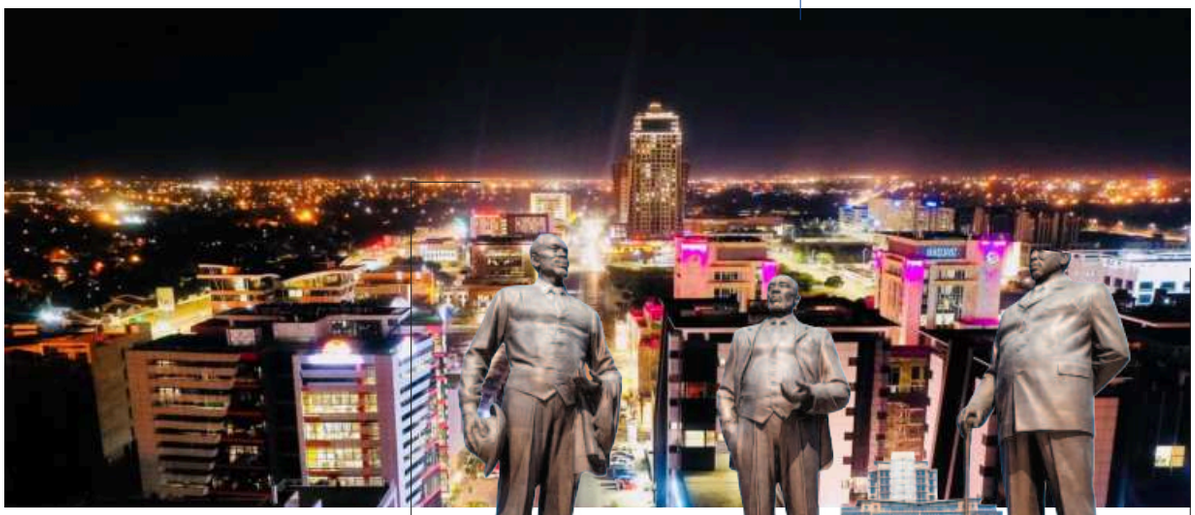

Located in the heart of Gaborone, the National Museum and Art Gallery serves as the guardian of Botswana's heritage. Established in 1967, it houses collections that span archaeology, natural history, visual art and ethnography.

Visitors can view traditional baskets, pottery, woodcraft and textiles, alongside contemporary artworks that reflect modern interpretations of identity, politics and culture. The museum also plays a vital role in conservation, community outreach and the preservation of Tsodilo Hill artifacts. More than a building, it is a cultural heartbeat, a space where old and new narratives meet.

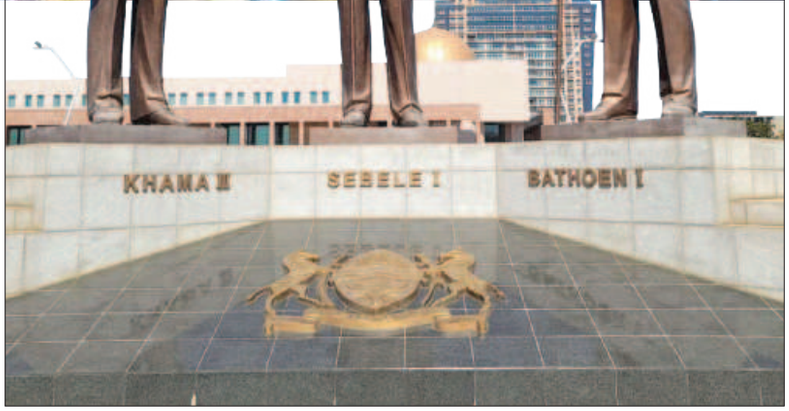

BUSHMAN ART: ANCIENT VOICES ON STONE

No artistic tradition in Botswana is as ancient or spiritually charged as Bushman (San) rock art. Found most famously in the Tsodilo Hills, a UNESCO World Heritage Site, these paintings are estimated to span thousands of years. The red and white depictions, hunters with bows, eland antelope, ritual dancers, reveal the cosmology of the San people. They speak of trance journeys, relationships between humans and animals, and the rhythm of survival in the desert. Standing before them, one senses the continuity of human experience: a reminder that Botswana's art story began long before modern borders and continues to shape cultural consciousness.

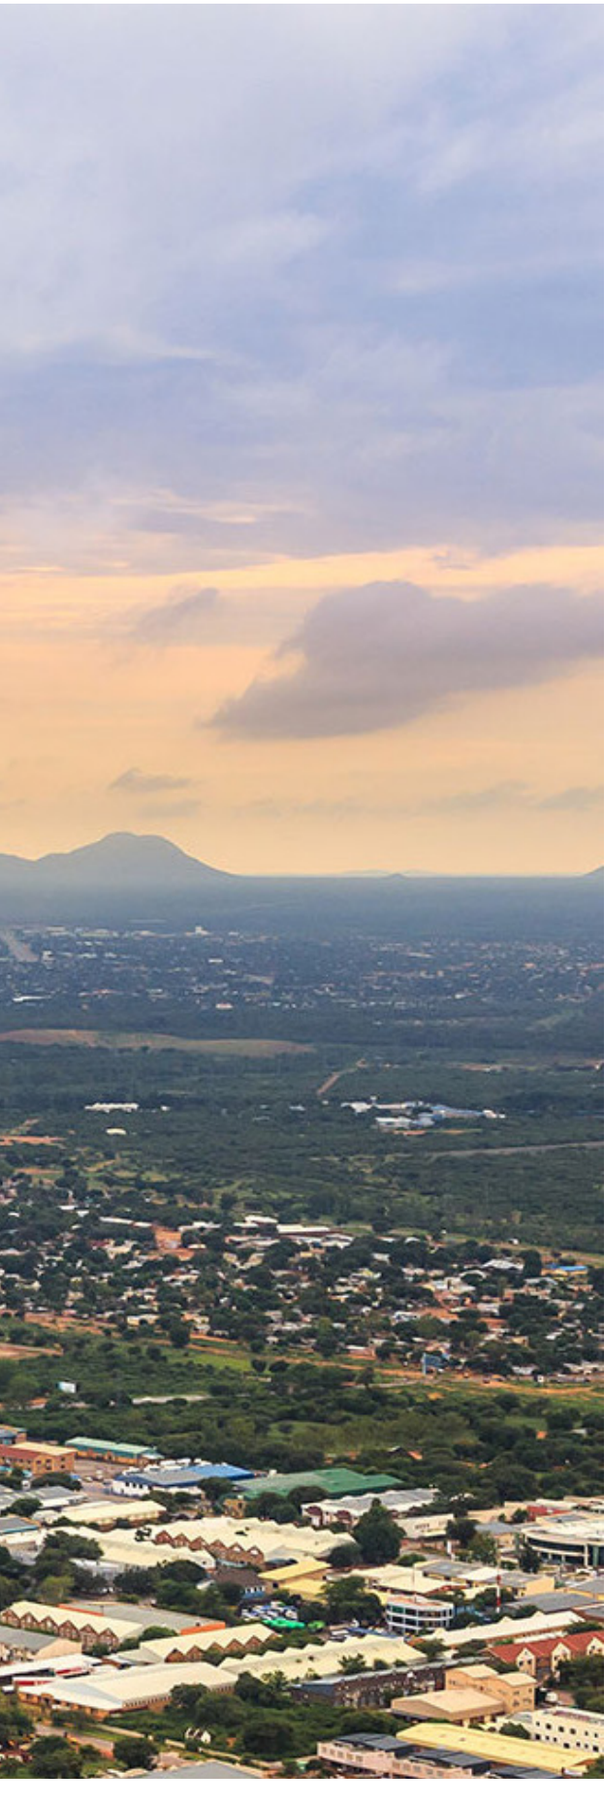

BOTSWANA ON STAGE: THE EVENTS THAT SHAPE A NATION

Botswana is known globally for its wildlife, diamonds and peaceful reputation — but beneath the calm surface lies a vibrant events culture that brings communities together, celebrates heritage, and draws visitors from across the region. From traditional dance gatherings in the Kalahari to high-energy music festivals in the capital, Botswana's events calendar showcases a nation rich in creativity and cultural rhythm.

KHAWA DUNES CHALLENGE - WHERE SPEED MEETS THE SPIRIT OF THE KGALAGADI

In the deep silence of the Kgalagadi, where red dunes roll into the horizon and the wind carries centuries of stories, one of Botswana's most electrifying events springs to life every May: the Khawa Dune Challenge.

What began as a small community gathering more than a decade ago has grown into a flagship adventure and cultural event — drawing thousands of spectators, thrill-seekers, bikers and 4x4 enthusiasts to the remote village of Khawa, near the border with South Africa.

MAKGADIKGADI EPIC – SKY, SALT PANS & SPECTACLE

In the vast expanse of the Makgadikgadi Pans, the Makgadikgadi Epic brings together skydivers from around the world for a gravity-defying weekend of sky jumps, aviation shows and desert parties. Combined with quad biking, meerkat excursions and salt-pan photography, it's one of Africa's most dramatic adventure-tourism events.

DESERT RACE – BOTSWANA'S ULTIMATE ADRENALINE RUSH

Often called "The Dakar of Southern Africa," the Toyota 1000 Desert Race is one of the country's most thrilling sporting events. Drivers and motorcyclists battle through rugged terrain, thick sand and unpredictable weather in a three-day off-road spectacular.

Hosted in locations such as Jwaneng or Mantshwabisi, the event attracts global motorsport fans and boosts local economies, especially in rural towns. It's loud, dusty and dramatic — but undeniably one of Botswana's proudest sporting traditions.

DITHUBARUBA CULTURAL FESTIVAL - A CELEBRATION OF TRIBAL IDENTITY & HERITAGE

Held annually in Molepolole in the Kweneng District, the Dithubaruba Festival is one of Botswana's most powerful celebrations of culture, history and identity. The festival transforms Molepolole into a living museum of tradition, filled with rhythmic drums, ancestral praise songs, dance troupes, oral history performances and cultural exhibitions that honour one of Botswana's most influential tribes.

NATURAL SELECTION

SAFARIS OF CHARACTER

Whether you arrive carrying a backpack, a camera, or an appetite for rugged, uncurated experiences, Botswana unfolds like an adventure novel waiting to be explored. Few places in Africa offer this combination of purity, vastness and soul.

In Botswana, adventure is not something created for visitors. It rises naturally from the landscape itself. It is found in the silence of the Kalahari, where the wind speaks across ancient dunes; in the rush of a charging herd breaking the stillness of morning; in the mirror-like calm of the Okavango floodplains; and in the heartbeat of remote communities whose traditions reach back centuries. This is a place where wilderness remains intact and where nature, not man, sets the rhythm. Those who come seeking excitement quickly discover that Botswana offers something far more meaningful than adrenaline. It offers awe.

ADVENTURE BOTSWANA: WHERE AWE LIVES IN THE WILD

WALKING WITH THE SAN: ANCIENT WISDOM

A walk with San trackers is an adventure into time itself. Travellers learn how to read footprints, identify edible plants, locate hidden water sources, and interpret animal behaviour — skills perfected over thousands of years of desert living. It is more than an activity; it is a cultural awakening, rooted in respect for the land and its oldest custodians.

HORSEBACK SAFARIS: RIDING WITH WILDLIFE

For travellers who crave a closer connection to wildlife, horseback safaris in the Makgadikgadi offer an intensity unmatched by vehicle-based safaris. Riders gallop alongside zebra herds, cross shallow channels formed by retreating floods, and shadow giraffes moving silently across open plains. With expert mounted guides leading the way, these safaris blend skill, courage and pure exhilaration, allowing adventurers to experience Botswana's wildlife at eye level, on nature's own terms.

ADVENTURE BEYOND NATURE: CULTURE, COMMUNITY & SPIRIT

Botswana's adventures are not limited to landscapes. They are also shaped by its people. Visitors can trace ancient migration stories through the rock art of Tsodilo Hills, join basket-weaving workshops in Ngamiland, spend an afternoon learning kgotla traditions in Kweneng, or walk with San trackers who share philosophies that have guided desert survival for millennia.

These encounters show that adventure in Botswana can be spiritual, cultural and deeply human.

THE KALAHARI: LESSONS IN SILENCE

The Central Kalahari Game Reserve offers one of the most powerful wilderness experiences on earth. Here, black-maned lions patrol vast grasslands that seem to stretch into eternity, thunderstorms crack open dramatic skies, and nights are lit only by stars. For explorers who crave isolation, the Kalahari delivers a meditative, humbling thrill that stays long after the journey ends.

CANOE EXPEDITIONS THROUGH THE DELTA

Those who prefer water-based exploration can embark on multi-day canoe adventures along the winding channels of the Okavango Delta. Travellers paddle past papyrus reeds and lily-filled lagoons, stopping to camp on hidden islands where the night sounds of lions, hyenas and hippos echo across the wetlands. By sunrise, paddlers slip back into the waterways, moving quietly through hippo paths and bird-rich channels. These journeys reveal the Delta's beauty at its slowest, most intimate pace, adventure that unfolds with grace rather than force.

SKYDIVING OVER THE MAKGADIKGADI PANS

One of Botswana's most surreal thrills comes from above. The Makgadikgadi Epic has transformed the salt pans into a premier skydiving destination, drawing adventurers from around the world. Jumping from thousands of feet in the air, you watch as the world's largest network of salt flats stretches endlessly beneath you, a shimmering white canvas that makes the earth look otherworldly. The drop is exhilarating, the silence profound, and the view unforgettable. It is widely considered one of Africa's most breathtaking high-adrenaline experiences.

BOTSWANA: A LIVING, BREATHING WILDERNESS

From the water-filled labyrinth of the Delta to the immense openness of the Kalahari, Botswana offers wildlife experiences that remain wild, authentic and awe-inspiring. Here, animals move freely, ecosystems thrive naturally, and travellers become witnesses to one of the last great wilderness sanctuaries on earth.

HIPPOS & CROCODILES — OKAVANGO DELTA

The Okavango Delta is alive with water-based wildlife. From mokoro (canoe) rides to motorboat excursions, travellers can spot:

- Hippos snorting in reed channels
- Crocodiles sunning on banks
- Elephants wading through lagoons
- Rare birds like african jacanas and kingfishers

The Delta offers unmatched proximity to water-adapted species in their natural habitat.

BEST PLACE: Okavango Delta
BEST TIME: June to September (high-water season)

BIRDS — THE WHOLE COUNTRY

With more than 550 bird species, Botswana is a birder's paradise.

The Okavango Delta is a hotspot for:

- African Fish Eagles
- Saddle-Billed Storks
- Kingfishers
- Wattled Cranes
- Carmine Bee-Eaters

During migration season, Botswana becomes a vibrant symphony of color and song.

BEST PLACES: Okavango Delta, Chobe, Makgadikgadi
BEST TIME: November to April (wet season)

BIG HERDS: BUFFALO, ZEBRA & ANTELOPE — SAVUTI & LINYANTI

The Savuti Marsh in Chobe and the Linyanti region are known for dramatic wildlife interactions:

- Massive buffalo herds
- Zebra migrations
- Large populations of lechwe, kudu, wildebeest

Where there are big herds, predators follow — making Savuti one of Botswana's most compelling wildlife theatres.

BEST PLACES: Savuti, Linyanti
BEST TIME: Dry season (June–October)

ELEPHANTS — CHOBE NATIONAL PARK

Chobe is home to one of the largest elephant populations in the world, and nowhere else on earth will you see elephants in such astonishing numbers.

Best moments include watching entire herds swim across the Chobe River at sunset or gathering along sandbanks to drink and play. Boat cruises offer front-row seats to this gentle, unforgettable spectacle.

BEST PLACE: Chobe Riverfront, Kasane
BEST TIME: May to October (dry season)

LIONS — CENTRAL KALAHARI & MOREMI GAME RESERVE

Botswana's lions are legendary — especially the black-maned Kalahari lions, known for their striking size and dramatic presence.

In the Central Kalahari, lions rule the open plains, offering travellers some of the rawest and most intimate big-cat encounters.

Moremi Game Reserve also boasts excellent lion sightings, often alongside buffalo and antelope herds.

BEST PLACES: Central Kalahari Game Reserve & Moremi Game Reserve BEST TIME: Year-round

MEERKATS — MAKGADIKGADI PANS

One of Botswana's most charming experiences is spending time with habituated meerkat colonies. As the sun rises, meerkats pop out of their burrows, climb onto travellers for a better view, and scurry off on their daily search for food.

BEST PLACE: Makgadikgadi Pans (Ntwetwe & Kalahari Plains) BEST TIME: Year-round

TASTE OF BOTSWANA:

A journey through flavour, tradition & community

Botswana's cuisine is a celebration of heritage — a slow-cooked symphony of flavours shaped by cattle culture, communal living, and the rhythms of the land. Here, food is not merely sustenance; it is storytelling. Every dish carries echoes of village firesides, harvest celebrations, and the ancient wisdom of a people who have lived close to nature for generations. From simmering stews to sorghum porridges, from sun-dried meats to hand-shaped dumplings, Botswana's food culture invites travellers into an experience that is both comforting and deeply authentic.

Most importantly, Food in Botswana is deeply social. Meals are served for sharing, eaten in circles, and prepared with patience. Visitors quickly learn that Setswana cuisine is less about complexity and more about connection — to the land, to family, to tradition.

MOPANE WORMS — A TASTE OF THE WILD

Loved across Southern Africa, mopane worms (mophane) are a traditional delicacy rich in protein. Often sautéed with tomatoes, onions and chilli, they are crunchy, flavourful and surprisingly addictive. For adventurous travellers, this is a must-try — a dish born from resourcefulness and the gift of the mopane woodlands.

BOGOBE JWA LEROTSE — HERITAGE IN A BOWL

Made from sorghum and flavoured with the pink-fleshed lerotse melon, this porridge is as comforting as it is symbolic. Bogobe jwa lerotse is a staple at traditional ceremonies and remains a favourite across generations. The subtle sweetness of the melon and the earthiness of sorghum create a harmony unique to Botswana's palate.

SESWAA — THE HEARTBEAT OF BOTSWANA'S KITCHEN

No dish captures the soul of Botswana quite like seswaa — a slow-cooked shredded beef traditionally prepared for weddings, festivals and family celebrations.

Cooked over hours until tender, the meat is pounded with a wooden masher and seasoned simply with salt. Served alongside pap or bogobe, seswaa embodies the beauty of Setswana cooking: honest, warm, and deeply satisfying.

GOAT MEAT, SEROBE & OTHER VILLAGE CLASSICS

Village cuisine offers deep cultural immersion:

Serobe — a traditional delicacy made from goat or cow offal

Mokoto — slow-cooked tripe with rich seasoning

Goat meat stew — tender, aromatic and perfect with dumplings

These dishes honour Botswana's pastoral traditions and communal feasting culture.

DUMPLINGS, FAT CAKES & SWEET COMFORTS

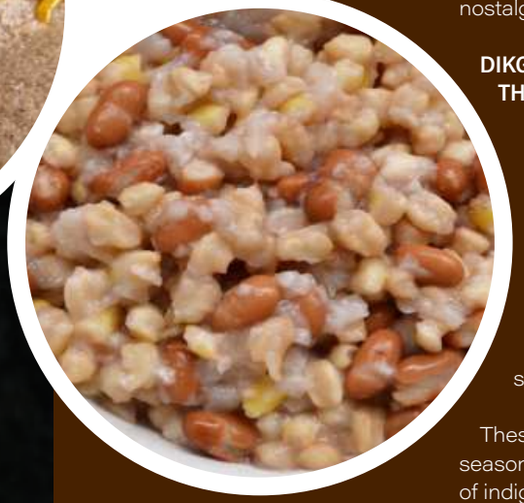

No Botswana food journey is complete without:

Magwinya (fat cakes) — golden, fluffy doughballs enjoyed at breakfast or on the go

Dikuki — traditional biscuits often served with tea

Diphaphatha — stovetop flatbreads perfect with jam or beef stew

These treats bring warmth and nostalgia to every table.

DIKGOBE, MOROGO & THE POWER OF SIMPLICITY

Botswana's cuisine celebrates the land's natural bounty:

Dikgobe: a nourishing blend of beans, samp or sorghum

Morogo wa dinawa: dried bean leaves cooked into a savoury vegetable dish

Morogo wa thepe: a beloved wild spinach

These dishes reflect sustainability, seasonality and an intimate knowledge of indigenous crops.

HOW TO MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR JOURNEY

Travelling to Botswana is like stepping into a different rhythm — one shaped by wilderness, warmth and wide-open skies. It's a country that rewards curiosity, patience, and a willingness to slow down and immerse in the moment. Whether you're coming for safari, culture or adventure, these essential tips will help you experience Botswana like a seasoned traveller.

EMBRACE THE PACE OF NATURE

Botswana runs on its own gentle tempo. Safaris start early, drives can take time, and wildlife follows no clock.

The magic here lies in waiting — for lions to rise from the grass, for elephants to cross the river, for the sunset to transform the sky. Lean into the quiet moments; they often become the most unforgettable.

PACK LIGHT, PACK SMART

The climate can shift from cool mornings to hot afternoons, so bring breathable layers. Essentials include:

- Neutral-coloured clothing
- Good walking shoes
- Sunscreen & wide-brimmed hat
- Insect repellent
- A warm jacket for winter safaris
- A camera or binoculars for wildlife watching
- And keep luggage soft-sided for light aircraft flights into the Delta.

STAY HYDRATED AND SUN-SAFE

Botswana's sun is no joke, especially in the Kalahari and Makgadikgadi. Drink water throughout the day, protect your skin, and don't underestimate the dry heat.

BRING CASH FOR RURAL AREAS

While cities accept cards, remote villages and community projects often operate on cash. Pula is easy to withdraw in towns before heading into the wild.

LEARN A FEW WORDS OF SETSWANA

Dumela rra/mma
(Hello sir/madam)
Ke a leboga
(Thank you)
O tsogile jang?
(How are you?)

The warmth you'll receive in return is worth it.

RESPECT WILDLIFE — ALWAYS

This is real wilderness. Animals roam freely, including in unfenced camps. Key rules:

- Keep a safe distance
- Never stand up in a safari vehicle near predators
- Don't feed animals
- Walk only with a guide
- Your respect keeps both you and the wildlife safe.

RESPECT LOCAL CUSTOMS

Botswana is friendly yet traditional. Dress modestly in villages, support local artisans, ask before taking photos of people, and participate in cultural experiences with curiosity and respect.

PLAN AHEAD — BOTSWANA FILLS UP FAST

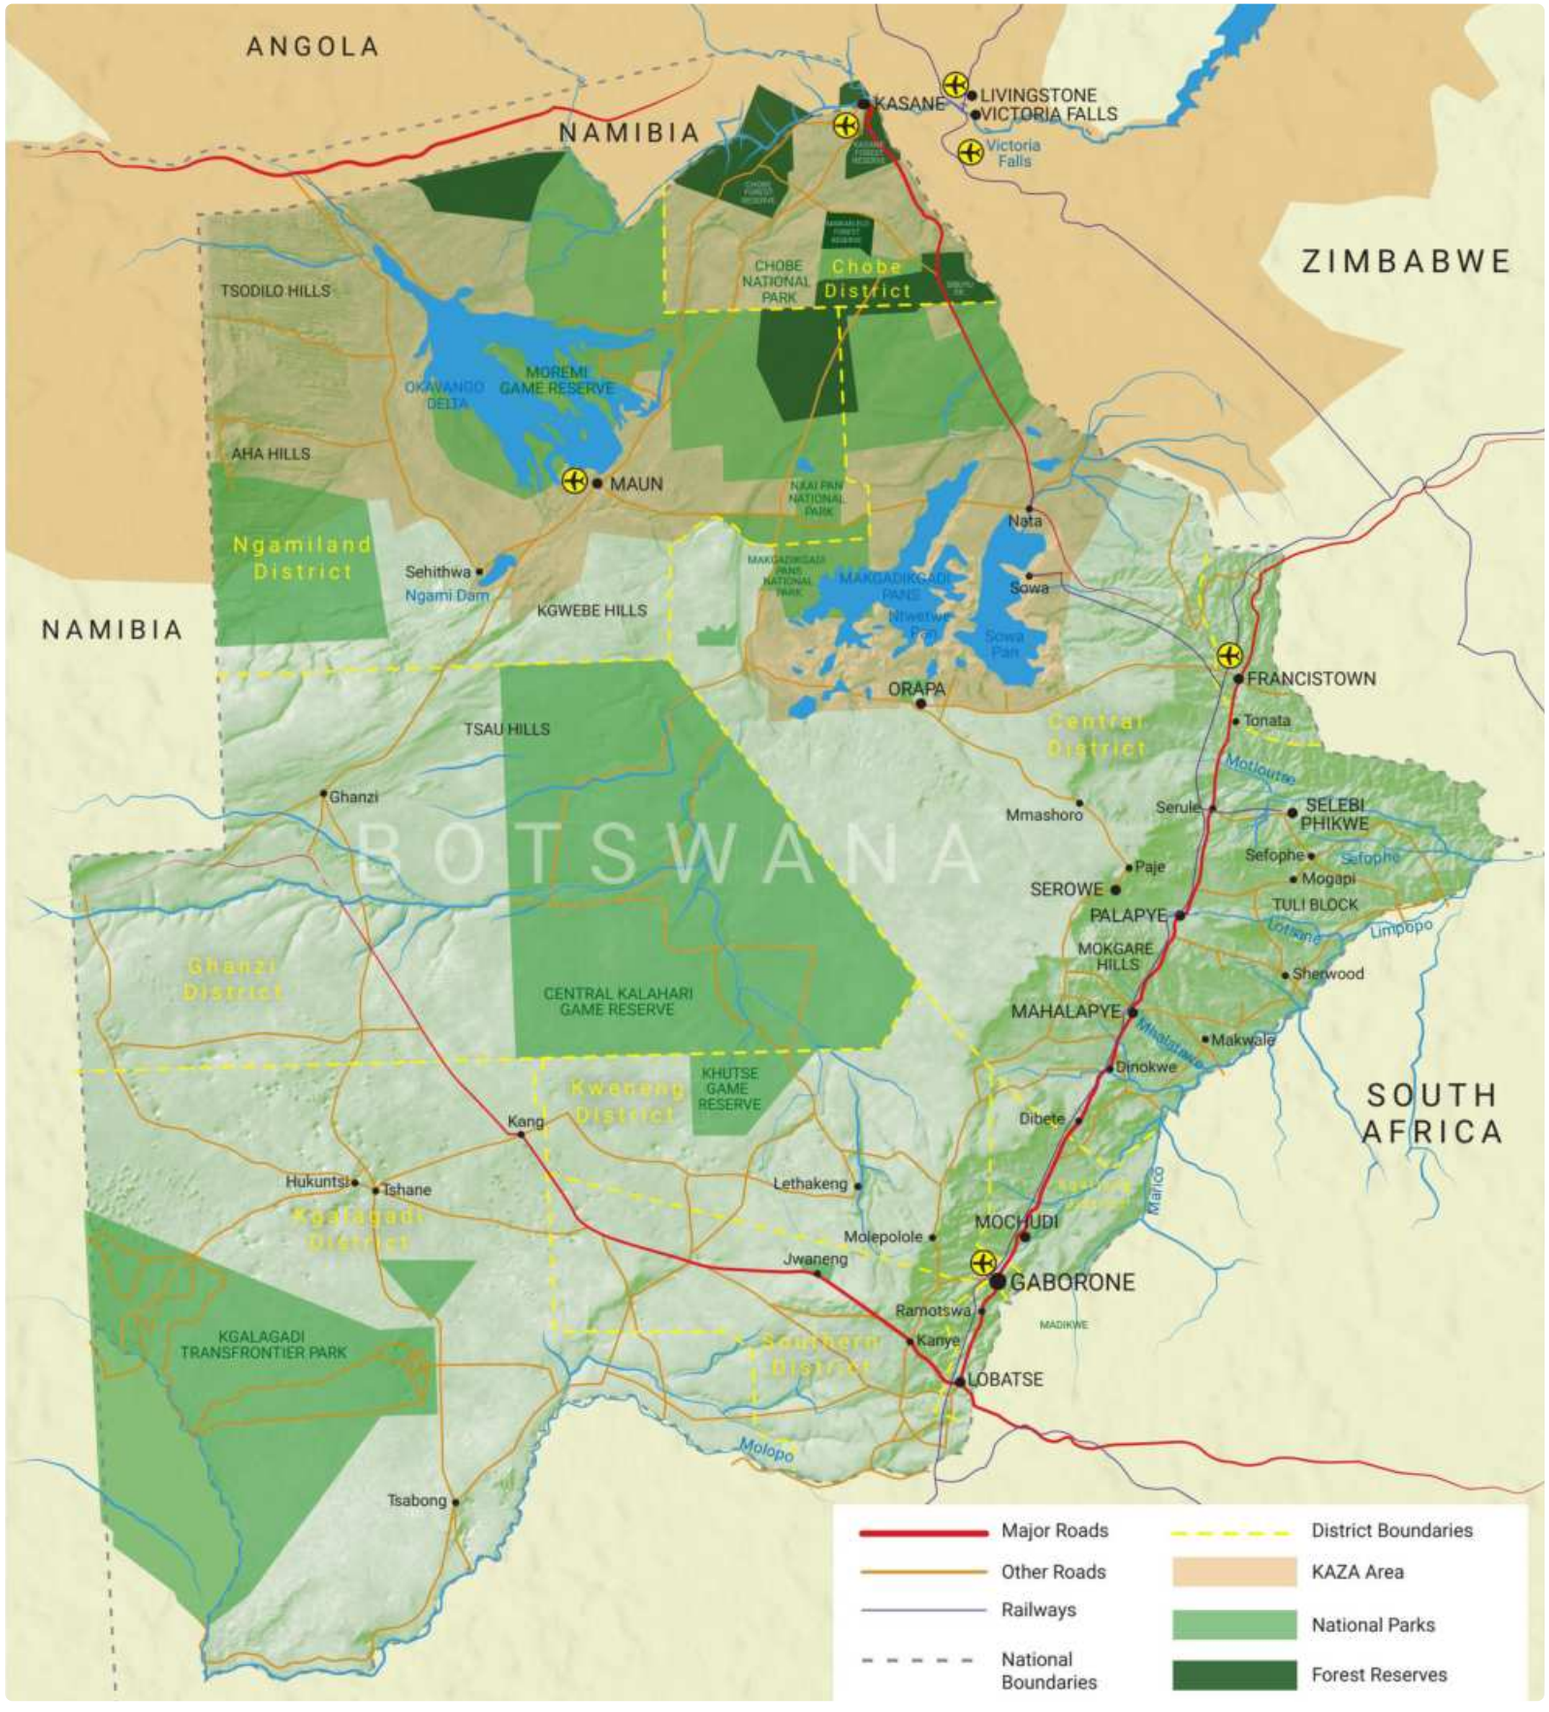

With its high-value, low-impact tourism model, lodges have limited beds — especially in Delta hotspots like Moremi, Khwai, and Linyanti. Book months in advance for peak season.

TRAVEL IN THE RIGHT SEASON

Dry season (May–October):
best wildlife viewing
Wet season (November–April):
birding, babies, lush landscapes
Peak Delta floods (June–August):
iconic mokoro and boating

LEAVE ONLY FOOTPRINTS

Botswana is one of the world's last truly wild frontiers. Help keep it that way: stay on designated tracks, minimise plastic use, and choose lodges committed to conservation.
